Red and blue etchings appeared all over campus when pranksters recently invaded BYU Monday night.

Vandals Storm Y Campus

Bronze Stadium Cougar drenched In Red Paint

A spray-paint militia of vandals have stormed BYU. And BYU will retaliate with legal action. "There reaches a point when friendly rivalry deteriorates into acts of vandalism and destruction to property and facilities," stated BYU Dean of Students J. Elliot Cameron. Since such deterioration can bring only embarrassment to institutions involved, it will be the policy of Brigham Young University to take appropriate legal action for any act of vandalism and would encourage other institutions to do the same.

No Tickets Until June 1 ...

City Move Saves Students

At 11:30 p.m. Monday the Provo City Commission passed a motion. The unanimous voting brought loud applause from those present.

The motion postponed enforcement of the off-street parking ordinance until June 1, 1968. But an amendment was attached: If parkers do not use the available off-street parking and willfully violate the ordinance, the Commission is authorized to begin enforcement.

ASBYU President Paul Gilbert pledged BYU student support of the decision. He promised that students will use all off-street parking available to them in an effort to obey the law.

SHORTAGE OF 700

The total of BYU students and Provo residents without off-street parking facilities about 700, claimed Provo Mayor Verl Dixon. If a thousand cars are left on the streets at night, we know that something is wrong. And if this happens, we'll enforce the law and ticket violators."

The purpose of the postponement is to give both landowners and parkers time to provide adequate off-street parking in Provo.

"We've been working long and hard to reach a workable solution," said Paul Gilbert in a statement Tuesday. "We have something workable now, but it still does not relieve us of all responsibility."

GILBERT'S PLEA

"I would like to make a strong plea that students use all available off-street parking in compliance with the ordinance," Gilbert continued.

Last Day For Shots

Today between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. is the last time this year for students to receive immunizations with no extra charge, said Glen Roundy, Health Center director.

Vaccines for influenza, diphtheria-tetanus and smallpox, and TB skin tests will be offered. The TB skin tests are recorded on computer cards and will be checked against Registration lists.

The success of this immunization program is dependent on the response and cooperation of the entire student body.

"We should give full support to the City Commission's decision. This will result in the fair treatment for which we have been seeking."

Academics Sponsors Activities

The Academics Office takes the reins today for Cougar Days activities.

Climaxing the day will be a Vietnam debate at 8 p.m. in A-104. John C. H. Teng, a beta of the Utah Prof. Dr. Helmut Colling and BYU Political Science Prof. Dr. Ray Hillman. Dr. Richard Poll of the BYU History Dept. will act as moderator.

ACTIVITIES

Today's activities include: At 11 a.m., an Inter-departmental Symposium, "Marriage Research," Dr. Duane M. Laws, CDFP department chairman, in 321 Wilkinson Center.

Noon, in the Varsity Theater, a College Bowl, faculty vs. student government.

FREE TUTORS

Also at noon and 4 p.m. a free tutor class (a meeting for all students who have volunteered their services as "free tutors." These volunteers must come to one of the two meetings) in 357 Wilkinson Center.

Free Forum at 2 p.m. in the Wilkinson Center Memorial Lounge, topic—"student government."

Directories Go On Sale

Student directories go on sale at 8 a.m. today according to Ron Miller, business manager and editor.

Booths will be set up on the Wilkinson Center west patio and will be manned by White Key members.

This year's directory includes all students who are registered for day school regardless of the number of hours they are taking. Directory price is 65 cents.

United Support For Gilbert

Monday night's city council meeting proved to be a rewarding experience for those who attended it. The constructive interaction of townspeople, student government officials and city councilmen in solving the overnight parking problem strengthened many observers faith in the efficacy of representative government.

At the outset of the meeting it appeared that the decision to enforce the parking ordinance on Oct. 24 was the final word in the matter and would be the source of an impossible dilemma for at least five hundred students and a number of landlords. Members of the Chamber of Commerce expressed concern that their recommendation of an extended time period to implement compliance with the ordinance had not been considered by the commission.

The commission expressed the desire to avoid injustice to students and residents but indicated that the ordinance needed to be enforced in the best interest of the city. The freedom of speech expressed that a further extension of the enforcement deadline would only weaken the ordinance and encourage further abuse.

Paul Gilbert and other ASBYU officers had spent countless hours in trying to clarify and protect student interests in the matter and attended the council meeting in order to make a final plea for consideration of the student's position.

The sincerity of the opinions expressed aided the discussion of the issue and made it apparent that a solution could be found.

When it finally was demonstrated that the issuance of citations would serve no constructive purpose in a significant number of cases due to complex problems of contract enforcement and space allocation the complexion of the meeting changed.

The idea was expressed that if residents and students would voluntarily comply with the spirit of the ordinance wherever possible perhaps an extension of the deadline would enable the landlords, students and residents to solve remaining problems.

Commissioner Murdoch led the way in moving that the deadline be extended to accomplish these ends and avoid possible injustice to residents and students.

The support of BYU students was pledged by Paul Gilbert who thanked the commission for the consideration they had given to the student position.

While the decision to extend the deadline removes the threat of citations to violators it does carry a certain burden of responsibility with it. Since students have received a good deal of consideration in the final decision it is important that they show consideration for the residents of the city by expending every possible effort in minimizing parking problems. Wherever it is within reason students must uphold the parking ordinance and avoid overnight parking on city streets.

With the knowledge that the law will be enforced after June 1, 1968 students should arrange for housing with adequate parking facilities and refuse to sign contracts without this provision.

We are fortunate to have one of the finest student body presidents in the history of the school. He has placed no limit on his efforts to represent the students of BYU. Now he has pledged our support in solving a serious problem.

Let's show Paul Gilbert how much we appreciate his efforts by backing his pledge one hundred per cent.

Fall Out

by Karl Meng and
Gary J. Gunderson

Amidst the usual college problems of financing a semester abroad in Springville, applying for a graduate assistantship in library checkout procedure, and supporting the paper faction of the religion department, is the pressing concern for suitable dates.

This is especially true for those who dare try to marry out of the ward. We believe by sheer luck we have stumbled on to the method of meeting people.

On our way to forum last Thursday, as we were cutting promiscuously across the lawn to avoid a flying wedge of English majors swooping out of the new wing of the JK, we noticed two sets of bobby socks in front of us. With originality we struck up a conversation: "What year are you freshmen?"

YOUNG MEN

After the tart reply of, "Beat it sub-strata!" we were repelled by the singing crowd and with shattered aspirations, forced to walk behind the two girls. It was apparent unless we formulated a new approach it would be another year void of romance.

Two Young Men, rushing to the rescue with premeditated dialogue, capitalized on our inadequacies.

1st Boy: HI, are you going to the forum?

1st Girl: Yes, are you?

2nd Boy: Sure. Could we carry your books? Hmm, general psychology book. What are you majoring in?

2nd Girl: I want to be an architectural engineer. I specialize in metallurgy. My roommate wants to definitely be a neuro-surgeon doctor or a Serbian folk dancer.

BEEN EVERYWHERE

She hasn't decided yet. We're both in general studies right now.

1st Boy: Where are you from?

2nd Girl: Right near L.A. Do you know where that is?

1st Boy: Sure. How near?

2nd Girl: 400 miles NNW, Antone Creek.

1st Boy: And where are you from?

1st Girl: Oh, just kind of all over. I was born in L.A. and moved to Heber last summer. You might say I'm from the world.

2nd Boy: Where do live here at college?

1st and 2nd Girl: Heritage Halls, wing 2A, room #303, 375-0905.

1st Boy: Cotton pick, that's groovin! What year are you?

2nd Girl: We are fresh—

1st Girl: This is our first year here at the "Y".

NEW HOPE

The conversation faded as we were pushed down the south ramp and the four walked hand-in-hand from the perceptual field.

The effect of this experience left our whole being illuminated with new hope. The realization that we could terminalize these ambiguous obscurities re-inflated our amorous egos.

At last we had the formula for co-educational success: (1) Ask questions people can easily answer. (2) Discuss universal truths. (3) Use the two "wheres" and the two "Whats".

These sound complex, but their mastery can lead you to formulate your own banalities. Here are a couple worked out: "What are you doing, studying?" "Well, do study too hard."

Stick to the habitual method rather than trying something original. You can always count on the results.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

RODEO

REBELLION?

Editor:

The editor on unnecessary rebellion interested me greatly.

I wish not to object to it but only to say that legal means of change should be a first step, but if this fails, and the issue seems substantial (to the protesters), Civil Disobedience is justified.

No serious person can say that peaceful steps through legislative practices are not the most desirable. But often this process is too slow and cumbersome, and the product is either a watered-down, mush-mash of words, or nothing at all.

A minority has little of the political power by which legislative changes are made, so it must resort to civil disobedience. A good example of this is the Civil Rights movement.

There can be no doubt that the progress made by such people as King and Wilkins would not exist had they resorted only to legal means. The Southern white racists often control the state and local governments.

They had everything to lose by allowing peaceful change and would be the last to submit. It was only civil disobedience and the massive publicity it brought that forced the Federal Government to act where the states had failed.

The person who practices civil disobedience is often the object of much derision.

The source of his action is his sense of the moral imperative of his beliefs. In order to change a practice of society that he feels is wrong, he is willing to go to jail, instead of following the masses. After all, we asked much of the Germans under Hitler.

Larry Vollentine

CONCLUSIONS

Editor:

I greatly appreciate that the Universe expended time and effort in conducting the recent political poll, and that they took the trouble to summarize the results.

Since then I have been hoping that some conclusions might have been drawn and printed.

I thought the respondents to the poll were, at one point, inconsistent in their replies. They voted overwhelmingly in favor of escalation of the war in Vietnam, then chose George Romney as their most preferred presidential candidate. Although in the past few months his statements have ranged at random over the middle parts of the political spectrum, Romney in general seems to have adopted a de-escalation posture.

We might perhaps conclude that (a) either a supposedly intelligent and enlightened group is in reality ignorant, or the Governor of Michigan is actually a hawk, leaning in direction of bombing, or (c) the respondents believe that the Constitution is now hanging by a thread and only a Mormon President can save it.

ISRAELIS BLAST EGYPTIAN REFINERIES

(UPI)—Israeli artillery knocked out 80 percent of Egypt's oil refining capacity Tuesday during a bitter hours-long Suez Canal battle that left refineries and oil depots along the Egyptian side of Suez, Israeli sources reported. Egypt claimed its forces shot down an Israeli Mirage jet later and damaged ten tanks on the east bank of the Suez canal as Egyptian and Israeli artillery, tanks and planes sliced over the southern reaches of the blocked waterway.

U.S. WILL SELL ARMS IN MIDEAST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department announced Tuesday a partial lifting of the ban on shipments of U.S. arms to the Middle East to permit sending warplanes to Israel, Syria and Morocco and some lesser equipment to Lebanon, India, Arabia and Tunisia.

The Department said the move is due in part to evidence Syria would supply the needed equipment if the United States blocked American sale.

New Addition To Target List...

U.S. Pilots Hit North Viet Mig Base

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. warplanes Tuesday, for the first time in the war, bombed North Vietnam's largest and best protected MiG base at Phuc Yen. The American raiders shot down one and possibly two MiGs that rose to defend the key base to Hanoi's aerial defenses.

The Defense Department said a "significant recent increase" in MiG activity led to the decision to bomb the airfield, previously off limits to U.S. pilots.

The air base, 18 miles northwest of Hanoi, had long been one of the main points of dispute between the joint chiefs of staff and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara over bombing policy.

There was no U.S. report of American pilots lost in the attack, but those who had to dive through every kind of defense the North Vietnamese could throw at them—Russia-built surface to air missiles (SAM), big flak guns, smaller anti-aircraft fire and the MiGs.

Radio Hanoi claimed MiGs and guns on the ground shot down nine American planes Tuesday. The broadcast said that five were downed over Hanoi, two over Phuc Yen and two more near the port city of Haiphong.

U.S. pilots reported "all bombs on target" and that the field was left in shambles.

Bozich Is 'Player Of Week'

(As Daily Universe Player of the Week, linebacker Craig Bozich is the recipient of a jacket shirt from Taylor's and a present in the Wilkinson Center Barber Shop.)

By Glen Willardson

Craig Bozich, junior linebacker on BYU's football team, has a philosophy that begins with three D's.

"Desire, dedication and determination"—together they're played a big part in helping Bozich become an outstanding defensive specialist.

Last Saturday against UT El Paso, Craig was the biggest single obstacle for the Miners' offense; he made eight tackles by himself and assisted on six others.

CALLS PLAYS

Few BYU fans know that Craig has a specific responsibility in the defensive huddle—he calls the plays. "We determine our basic defense in the huddle," he says, "and then we adjust after the other team gets set on the line."

Probably the most thrilling moment Bozich had on the gridiron was in the BYU-Oregon State clash two weeks ago. On the second play of the game, Craig intercepted an OSU pass on the 32-yard line which set up BYU's first score.

It was the second interception of the year for Bozich and the Cougars kept the momentum going to move a 21-13 win.

Bozich gives credit for his success to Coach (Tom) Hudspeth and Coach (LeVell) Edwards (defensive coach), saying "No football player is greater than his coach."

Before coming to BYU Bozich played prep football under Royal Shepard at Aurora, Colo. Shepard is now head coach at the University of Colorado, and his team is fourth-ranked nationally.

Earning seven varsity letters in high school, Bozich was drafted by the Detroit Tigers in the first round of the amateur baseball draft after graduation. He decided to go on to college, however, and football detracted his major interest—but with his bacteriology major.

Speech Contest Deadline Nears

Friday is the last day to register for the Donald C. Sloan Extemporaneous Speaking Contest open to undergraduates.

The annual contest has become a tradition at BYU along with the Heber J. Grant Oratorical Contest. Both offer awards for excellence in speaking ability.

A prize of $80 will be awarded to the student who wins in the three rounds of extemporaneous talks.

The second place winner will receive $30.

Participating students will draw current topics from a box four hours before they present their five minute talks. Typical topics will be "Will China become more deeply involved in the Vietnamese conflict?" or "What are the chances for a third party in 1968?"

All undergraduates (with the exception of former first-place winners and last-term seniors) are eligible to register before 5 p.m. Friday in D-581 HFAC.

Any student who reads a newspaper or takes a news magazine and is interested in current events may be qualified to participate successfully, said Dr. Gary Petersen, Speech staff member in charge of the contest.
